

Interview

My interview with my grandfather was very interesting. I learned a lot about my family, and my grandfather, that I never knew. One of the most interesting things was the most important invention is his childhood by his opinion was the television. He went on to tell me a story about how his and his brother threw newspapers for 80 weeks to earn the money for the television. His father said that he would buy the antenna. Also he went on to say that before the television him and his brother went to the movies, they could get a movies and a trip and a snacks for 25¢, the got a round trip bus ride, from Benton to Waterville, for 5¢, the movie for 7¢, and they use the rest for snacks.

I also learned that when my grandfather was in the navy they had to go to Guam, it was the longest trip he ever when on. They had to cross the Panama canal and he got to steer the ship through it. My grandfather, actually, wanted to be the captain of a submarine but he could pass the pressure test, the last time he took it he ears bled.

These were the highlights of my interview. I hoped you enjoyed them as much as I did.
